1. During a recent conversation, Fritz Selmann, DDR Minister of Industry, pointed out to Prof. Friedrich Hoeglich, Director of the Institute of Research into Solids of the DDR Academy of Sciences in Berlin-Buch, that he need no longer worry about any controls imposed on research by the Allied Control Authority, and that he was completely free to undertake any research he wanted.
2. Professor Witthrodt of the DDR Office for Science and Technology has recently made inquiries as to whether the cadmium sulphide cell could be used to measure dosages (das Dosieren) of neutrons, and has recommended serious study of this question.
3. There has been considerable talk over the last few weeks about establishing an institute of nuclear physics under the DDR Academy of Sciences, to be under the direction of Hachenberg. *

25X1A * Comment: Hachenberg is described as one of the most capable physical engineers with OSW; it is rumored that he is negotiating a move to Western Germany.
